

Sunflowers were my inspiration for this color palette and collection of vintage clothing. They are one of my favorite flowers. To me they represent positivity, not only because of their color, but because of how their faces follow the sunlight, always looking away from the darkness.

They also remind me of a solar eclipse, with their dark brown, grey, and black centers and bright yellow petals. I find them to be a source of inspiration in so many ways. Even though their color palette has so much darkness to it, their shade of yellow is bright enough that when we think of a sunflower, we think of yellow.
