

This assignment was surprisingly difficult! Rather than selecting my favorite colors at random, I decided to match the colors I've incorporated throughout my home. The blue, green, purple, and red (pink) are prevalent, while orange and yellow were difficult to even find. I was not surprised to discover that my personal "favorites" are primarily bold and bright, but it did surprise me to see how cool my preferred palette is.

To find my least favorites, I went through the color aid kit and selected the colors that elicited a negative reaction ("ew, I would never pick that color."). In terms of value and tint/shade, I mostly disliked the more washed out (lower value and/or higher tint) hues. With reds and yellows, I definitely prefer the lighter tint and value. Again, that speaks to the warmth of the colors I prefer; I'm really not a fan of darker reds or yellows, or their secondary orange.
