Above I create a room palette I really like. The base colors are a mixture of white, light greys and light browns (light wood color). The light coloring of the background really brightens up the environment and lets the light sweep in easier. The accent colors in this case would be a touch of darker brown – contrasting with the lighter browns, blue – varying in value and saturation and some green (mainly from plants – I love the touch that green, especially in the form of plants, bring to an interior room).
