

This was a lot of fun for me because I am in the process of updating furniture and I have been playing around with color palettes. I think this palette could work, but I love mixing textures, so that is what would emphasize this. I have a very bohemian vibe, so I think this reflects that well. The gray would be the largest anchor in the room, the sofa. The beige/brown would be a leather chair and the green would be another velvet chair. Greenery for plants as well. The charcoal black color would be accent furniture or picture frames. I can see a lot of nature shots, especially the west coast warm mountain vibes, framed on the wall. The orange and blue I would use as accent colors for pillows and window treatments, maybe the base of a pot for a plant to go in. The rug I would also keep a neutral, probably something black and white or the charcoal and gray family. I would use gold finishes with this color palette. I could also see the brighter orange being a lighter pink for a more feminine vibe.
